

a COLORFUL
World SPLIT IN TWO

An original of Ms. Wilson's 5th grade class at Washington Writers' Academy in conjunction with Read And Write Kalamazoo

A Division of Geological & Musicological Survey Co. Publications
Copyright 2018

Published March 28th, 2018

For more information about Read And Write Kalamazoo's literacy focused programs, please visit www.readandwritekzoo.org

Today's Story Helpers Are:
Leader: Jason Conde
Illustrator: Emily Kastner
Typist: Victoria Marcetti
Support: John Ephland and Jess Fales

A Colorful World Split in Two

There was once a world unlike any other, for one thing, everything was edible! The candy corn grass, cotton candy trees, sour powder dirt, everything. There was a great mountain range and on one side the flower-scented light blue sky was filled with orange clouds and lit up by a sun with a face that screamed. On the other side it was rainy and fiery tornadoes were a common occurrence. When it rained, cats would fall from the sky while shooting rainbows out of their tails.

On both sides of the mountain range there were some very unique plants. There were tall blue plants that spit coins and barked like dogs. There were also talking chocolate plants that enjoyed eating good pizza and bad people. All the plants were strangely human-like, with legs and three eyes.

On the dark side of the mountains lived huge spiders that spun webs that could make people sick. On the bright side of the mountains there lived a herd of beautiful flying blue unicorns who cast spells to protect people from the spiders. They were locked in a deadly conflict.

To get around on the candy side of the mountain, there were floating rainbow clouds that would expand or shrink depending on the number of riders. The clouds on the other side of the mountain were rainy and shot out thunderbolts that caused breakdowns. They were tiny clouds that wouldn't expand to accommodate people so everyone had to pile on uncomfortably.

There were blue dash rainbow sky rivers that included ALL the colors of the world. It smelled like cotton candy and tasted like blueberries, when you drank it the liquid would pop in your mouth.

Dr. Christian called this world home. He was 5' 5", had silk hair and blue eyes, and wore black pants, a white jacket, work shoes, and a stethoscope. He lived in a house near the mountain border. He was very helpful, kind, creative, and wealthy. He worked hard to help everyone without concern about whether they were good or bad because he didn't want to get fired. He and his wife Sally were a very happy family.

Dr. Christian was directly opposed by Sorcious the Scorpion, Dark King of the Bust Down Castle. He was 10 feet tall and always wore a red football uniform with number 99 on the jersey and a cracked mask. He had braces, pink hair, and his eyes changed color with his mood. He lived alone in an abandoned castle on the dark side of the mountains, it had no roof, pink water, and guards at all the doors. Sorcious could fly, control the weather around him, and shoot citric acid from his thumbs and pinkies, and wielded a half-eaten chocolate sword. His negativity caused a lot of bad weather and when his parents realized he was headed toward badness they abandoned him to go live on the bright side. He missed them very much.

Sui Generis was a very special 6'5", 15-year-old who could shape-shift between a human and a unicorn. In her human form she had long black hair that would turn rainbow when she was around animals. In unicorn form she loved to make people laugh by pooping out candy. As a human she had a healing touch and so she worked at the hospital. When she was little her mom got sick and died so now that she had found her powers she wanted to save people from sickness.

Abby Phoebe Williams had a beautiful face and hair that she could change at will. She lived in the mountains and refused to choose a side to live on, though she often traveled to both sides. She was 10 feet tall, could sprout heads if she wanted to, was super strong, and could fly or teleport. She was the daughter of Dr. Christian but they had a bad relationship and she ran away and made friends with Scorpius.

One day Christian and Sui were having a special meeting on the mountain about how to provide care to everyone in their world. At that same time, Scorpius and Abby were out for a walk, talking about how they missed their parents. Just then, they spotted Christian and Sui and decided they needed to confront them...

