

RAWK in'
Through The Wreckage

Youth Poetry From a Year of Pandemics, Uprisings, & Revolutions

Collected for the Kalamazoo Poetry Festival 2021

Read and Write Kalamazoo exists to celebrate and amplify youth voices through the cultivation of reading and writing skills via joy, creativity, equity, and access.

In celebration of the Kalamazoo Poetry Festival, RAWK has compiled this digital publication to share the poetry we have had the honor to publish over the past year as we all learned to adapt to a new world.

Between our first virtual Summer Writing Camps and our Quarantine Anthology Project we have released four new anthologies of student writing:

- Who Can Change the Future? Poetry & Prose from RAWK's First Virtual Summer Writing Camps 2020
- Shelter In Place Stories and Words from the Socially Distant Front Lines of Home
- Separate Together Collected Works From Isolation
- Questions You Can't Answer Wisdom & Antibodies From Our Heroes' Virtual Journeys

From these publications comes a collection of poems of praise and wonder, of every day joys, of worry and pain, strength and determination, of confessions, confusions, and calls to action. Written in virtual RAWK workshops and mentoring sessions, in virtual school classrooms, and in all the places these young poets found themselves weathering the many storms of our collective existence.

RAWK's mission has always been to celebrate and amplify youth voices, but the past year has underscored why we exist and why we're going to keep working and adapting to support the young people of Kalamazoo. Now more than ever, young people need space to process and express, to explore and grow, and to step into the inherent power of their words and stories.

...

The writings shared here were collected between March 25th, 2020 and March 15th, 2021

RAWK would like to thank Anne Hensley for the time and creative efforts spent in the editing of the four anthologies that contributed to this publication.

Contents

From Volumes 1, 2, & 3 of the Quarantine Anthology Project, 2020–2021

Black Lives Matter

by Amani Hill

1

I Want Things to Change

by Cecilia Puente

2

Protests Poem

by Hannah Boothby

4

Untitled

by Sagan Barber

6

I Am Every Good Thing

by Max Bormann

7

I Am Every Good Thing

by Harrison Bryce

8

I Am Every Good Thing

by Kyree Whitfield

9

I Am Every Good Thing

by Sabrina Barrett

10

Wonderful Women

by Anna Kingston

11

Love Ones

by Yamilet Brito-Arevalo

12

Questions You Can't Answer

by Eliseo Daniel Blanco

13

Like a Star

by Tony VanStrein

14

Acrostic Poem

by Gus Roman

15

Acrostic Poem

by Kendall Herrmann

16

Acrostic Poem

by Jack Stefanick

17

Poem

by Mara Boyea

18

My Smile

by Regina Castillo-Castaneda

19

The True Future Of Me

by Elizabeth Bippley

20

The Future.

by Masha Canfield

21

Once Upon a Time ...

by Giuliana Bush

24

Rise Above

by Kailah Gaines-Harris

27

Troubled Treadmill

by Johanna VanLandegent

29

In My Garden

by Ingrid Aardema

30

Eraser Poem

by Olivia Brooks

31

Headphones Haiku

by Jack Stefanick

32

Enchanted Dragon

by Taegan Rademacher

33

Horchata

by Jose-Luis & Amaya Olivo

34

Random Stuff

by Salvador Blanco

35

Cookbook

by Amaya Olivo

36

Transformer Instructions

by Adahy Garcia

37

Transformer Instructions Continued

by Adahy Garcia

38

Stripes

by Zanaya Wilson

39

StrongWind

by Zanaya Wilson

40

An Ode to Pizza

by Darek J. Roberts

41

List Poem

by Jeydon White

42

Virtual Snow Day

by Adam Justa

43

Metaphor Me

by Moira Springsteen

44

Bittersweet

by Caleb Meskin

45

The Poem About Nature

by Mackenzie Lepisto

46

Ice Skating Poem

by Olivia Brooks

47

An Ode to Snow

by Kendall Herrmann

48

Kevin's Winter Day

by Harper Petke

49

Spring

by Jacob Milliken

50

Lake Michigan

by Stella Scavarda

51

Noodle, My Snake

by Andrew Boertman

52

The Woods

by L.E. Mansberger

53

From RAWK's First Virtual Summer Writing Camps, 2020

Sand

by Amairany Arevalo

54

I'm Hopeful

by Amairany Arevalo

55

Untitled 1-3

by Carter Tuthill

56, 57

Question Poem

by Elizabeth Sparks

58

Haiku

by Elizabeth Sparks

59

Untitled

by Maddex DeGraw

60

Untitled

by Margie Glynn

61

Strengths

by Stella Tillman

62

My Community

by Stella Tillman

63

I'm Black

by Tony VanStrein

64

(2 Haikus)

by Tony VanStrein

65

Untitled

by Zanaya Wilson

66

Art is EVERYTHING

by Audrina Wellington

67

Sunshine

by Audrina Wellington

68

Ode to Isolation

by Caroline Guo

69

Summer Haikus

by Chloe Jones

71

A Summer Poem

by Chloe Jones

72

To: The People of 2020

by Eloise Dunfee

73

Ode to Simple Joys

by Masha Canfield

74

Six Feet

by Tessa Hawthorne

75

Future

by Tessa Hawthorne

76

A Poem About Today

by Anonymous

77

Death

by Yamilet Brito-Arevalo

78

Untitled

by Jackson Atkins

79

Untitled

by Jackson Atkins

80

Will Black Lives Matter?

by Layla Roberts

81

Untitled

by Sagan Barber

82

Untitled

by Sagan Barber

83

For the Future I Want ...

by Hanis Sommerville

84

Hesitate

by Vivian Enriquez

85

When We Free Ourselves

by Vivian Enriquez

86

Black Lives Matter

by Amani Hill, 5th grade

When I heard what was going on in the world right now, it made me feel sick to my stomach.

Not just because I'm Black.

But because it is not right.

The news has been blowing up

I saw the video.

It was frustrating to see a person that is equal to all being hurt because of his skin.

I remember in AT classes, last year, learning about this

My teacher said, "Racist people still exist."

I was just thinking, "I don't know about that. I haven't heard about it in a long time." Now I know that it is true.

Actually, I remember feeling misplaced last year because I was the only black person in AT classes.

Think about this:

What does Target, Family Dollar, and other businesses have to do with this?

Our world is getting changed into a warzone

Whites vs Blacks again

Why do we have to bring this back up?

How many times is this going to happen?

We have been silenced throughout the years it's our turn to protest and say what is right but all of a sudden it's a problem.

I Want Things to Change

by Cecilia Puente, 5th grade

I get really mad sometimes.
Like really mad.
Like I want to yell.

I want to scream.
I want to throw a fit.
I want to break things apart.

I WANT THINGS TO CHANGE

People shouldn't be afraid of who they are Or what they look like Or the color of their skin

Afraid that one day they'll be killed by people Who are being paid to protect to them

I WANT THINGS TO CHANGE

You say Black people cause more trouble?
Have more fights?

That's because you're in their neighborhoods Watching them like a hawk.

I WANT THINGS TO CHANGE

When a White person kills a Black person, it's self defense.

When a Black person kills a White person, it is murder.

I WANT THINGS TO CHANGE

It's like those old time movies.

People only see Black and White.

Why can't they see what actually matters?

I WANT THINGS TO CHANGE

I don't want people to look at me and just see the color of my skin.

I want them to see me.

For who I am.

I WANT THINGS TO CHANGE

Protests Poem

by Hannah Boothby, 8th grade

I marched in the protests, when memory fades,
I'll never forget these horrors.
I'll remember the history, because it's my history,
'cause not so long ago, we shouted and marched,
down through the streets,
hoping to change our world.
They had their guns, and they had their dogs, but we had our dreams and our hope.
Our voices were stronger than weapons they carried, and so the laws were changed.
I see the protests, when we pass away, history remembers these horrors.
The future will not forget what we did, oppressors and the oppressed.
So we shout and we march,
down through the streets,
tired of hate in our world.
They have their guns, their gas and their bullets, but we have a say in what's seen.

Our voices are stronger than weapons they carry, so we don't let go of our hope.

Untitled

by Sagan Barber, 16 years old

It only takes a spark,
A single flicker to ignite the poised tinder of an open mind.
As the fire spreads, so does your voice,
It becomes ignition for others' action.
A forest fire of wild thoughts, Burning trees that whisper for the fight.
People douse us with waterlogged insults, Sordid attempts to put us out,
They haven't realized that attempts to strangle us, Only make us tower higher;
The unstoppable burn of active action.
Some people won't survive,
The opposers are too scared of us and smother them.
We fight for them, their deaths will never be in vain.
We fight even when the fire is smoldered, Nothing left but embers growing dim,
But if there's even one minuscule light left, We'll rage on again and again,
Coming back brighter and bolder than times before.

I Am Every Good Thing

by Max Bormann, 4th grade

I am as loud as a lion, and sometimes as quiet as a mouse.

I am super fast, as fast as light.

I am artsy like my mama.

I am silly like a monkey, and sometimes serious like a tiger.

I am snuggly like my stuffed animals.

I am proud like a cat that caught a mouse.

I Am Every Good Thing

by Harrison Bryce, 4th grade

I am a sportsman, a courts man,

I am nasty

“Slam dunk.”

I am a touchdown, a field goal, a 90-yard running streak.

I am the kick, the the goal, I am breaking ankles full.

I am the reader, the leader,

the one that's got the Knowledge.

I am right, I am wrong, but ...

My wisdom is never gone!

I Am Every Good Thing

by Kyree Whitfield, 4th grade

I am a sports player.

I am a giver not a taker.

I am a winner, not a loser.

I am a leader, not a follower.

I am a team player.

I Am Every Good Thing

by Sabrina Barrett, 4th grade

I am an artist like Vincent van Gogh.

I am as short as a sapling.

I am fun, positive, and energetic.

I am a gamer like my brother.

I am a thinker and a helper.

I am a friend like no other.

I am as cuddly as a cat and as shy as a mouse.

I am there when my friends and my family need me.

Wonderful Women

by Anna Kingston, 12 years old

Sally Ride, the first woman in space Rosa Parks stayed seated while standing for her race Aretha Franklin, The Queen of Soul, raised in our state Junko Tabei, climbing Everest was her fate

Amelia Earhart flew across the deep, blue ocean Benazir Bhutto was a Prime Minister against all man's notion Ruth Bader Ginsburg, the Supreme Court Justice who was notorious Frida Kahlo's paintings, fighting stereotypes and simply glorious

So many wonderful women to inspire me
When it came to their battles they did not flee My battle has just started, I'm following their way With their guidance I will not go astray

Love ones

by Yamilet Brito-Arevalo, 12 years old

Love ones come love ones stay love ones taste love ones dance love ones leave love ones will come back

Questions You Can't Answer

by Eliseo Daniel Blanco, 9 years old

Are we still dreaming or Are we just a thought?

Is the future Dead or is it happy?

When we die will there be darkness or will it be family?

Is life gonna be worth living or not?

What if we never wake up?

What if there is no light ever again?

Is corona gonna end? (hopefully it does)

What would life be like if everyone was the same?

What if we had no names?

What would we call each other?

Why do we say thank you or please?

What is the reason for rewards?

Like a Star

by Tony VanStrein, 10 years old

Life is like a star Big and Bright or little and dim. We don't know which it will be but we do know that we can make the best of it. Like a star life can collapse. Like a star people can expand to become a void that sucks in everything including the light of others. Like a star people die so that there's room for others to come. Like a star if we all come together we can shine so bright that all darkness flees. Like a star.

Acrostic Poem

by Gus Roman, 4th grade

Dream of freedom for all.

Religion guided him.

Miraculous guy who changed the world.

And he made people think.

Remembered for making it so black and white people were able to do the same thing.

Trustworthy.

Ideas that are unimaginable.

Noticed by many.

Loved by many.

United people.

Truthful.

Helpful to many people.

Encouraging.

Resented by some.

Kind to others.

Integrative.

Never forgotten.

Gone forever.

Acrostic Poem

by Kendall Herrmann, 4th grade

Do you have a dream?
Rights should be equal

Maybe we could all get along All of us together Right here forever
Today is a change
In all of our hearts
None will be hurt

Let's all think this through, it is the right thing to do?
United, we stand Tonight we fight, with our powerful words Here we all are together Everyone is getting along Right here, right now

Kindness everywhere
In and out
Not worried
Great people, all of us here together!

Acrostic Poem

by Jack Stefanick, 4th grade

Dreams he dreamed changed the world Rallying people toward a cause

Marching for freedom Across the nation
Rule breaker because they weren't fair for all Tireless in his fight for civil rights In a time of segregation Never giving up

Lightning only makes sound if it strikes Us with the power of bravery Thoughts towering in his mind Helping Black lives
Even if he faced the consequences Resistance was his daily fight

King of protecting lives In a plague of segregation Niagara Falls isn't as powerful as his heart, even though many tried to break it Giving peace to the world is his legacy

Poem

by Mara Boyea, 4th grade

We can do anything we want Unless it is bad

So set goals and do them

 You be you

 Try new things

 Live life

My Smile

by Regina Castillo-Castaneda, 13 years old

My smile is a crescent moon.
My smile feels like a beam of moonlight;
It is simple, sparkly, subtle.

My smile protects me.
It makes me feel joyful, beautiful, and calm.
But I wonder if my smile is a gift to cover my pain.

I wonder why you were born, my smile.
Was it to protect me?
Are you a wall to keep my pain hidden?
Are you meant to share with people who fill my days?

But what I wonder the most is ...
Could you share your gift with me, like you do with others?

The True Future Of Me

by Elizabeth Bippley, 12 years old

Doing the impossible.

Daring to break.

Break all those barriers for once and for all.

Doing the thing that some think you shouldn't, just because you are a girl.

Doing more than one thing.

Helping millions upon millions through your dream.

Speaking truth.

Helping others.

Doing math and physics.

Daring to do what you want.

President of the United States.

Astronautical Engineer.

Anything ...

The Future.

By Masha Canfield, 12 years old

When I look into the future, I'm still not sure what the fates hold in hand for me.
I still see myself spreading love,
And understanding those with their own path,
So I can help carry them through life's wonders, Like a road filled with endless potholes and bumps,
But also intersections, Crossing with the promise of possibilities.
For then I can share the knowledge, That I've gained throughout the unfaltering sea called life.
And for the others I meet,
They shall choose to pass it on too, For then the truths of the world will be met with courage,
Not fear of the unknown.
Like knights we'll rise,
Full of the quake and pride of tomorrow, Strong as the hope we carry.
For we shall strive to build a better place,
A future full of love and honesty.

The future.

And as we stand tall,
On the shoulders of giants,
The ones that have pushed us to climb this high.

We must not let them down.
For we must leave behind a better past,
Than the pasts before us.
And as we stand resilient,
In the ashes,
That still rings from the memories,
Not forgotten.
From those who extinguished the fire,
Still burning,
From the ashes we build and always will.
And as we stand proud,
Meeting the right and wrongs of us as a people, Still carrying the bright burning torch of before, now, and later.
We stand with the brilliant smiles given to us, Gracing the faces of tomorrow,
Our unwavering perseverance, Made from the strength we've found, Molding a path we'll take.
Together we will overcome the new dawn.

The future.

I will surround myself with those whom I love,
The pulling of my needs, Warmth, kindness, understanding,
They will build the future.
For some shall deny the future.
But I shall meet it towering over my past mistakes, Proud and strong.
From the ones that have taught me to vanquish my fears,

Back to the pit of darkness and demons.
Hoping,
That one day someone will learn to feed the light to the monsters too, Just like I will.

The future.
And the present will be made,
Shaped by the ones who scale the mountains,
Of doubt and uncertainty.
Marked by the ones who open the veil of possibilities to others, Educating to bring light to our woes.
Decorated by the ones who bring the small smile of the sun,
And help drive away the cloud of anger and misery.
Painted by the ones who soothe the mistakes and doubts of others, Like angry splats of ink on thick white paper of vulnerability, Accompanied by the same array of messes showing,
For we are all the same,
But unique.
Tomorrow will be shaped,
By the ones like you.

The future.
Our future.

For some shall deny the future. But the future shall not deny me.

Once Upon a Time ...

by Giuliana Bush, 13 years old

How about we write a story
This is a story about a little girl.
A little girl who loves school.
She loves school because she loves to learn.
And she knows education is how she's going to change the world.
So in the first chapter,
This little girl walks into school one day,
When she is told by her teacher
To stop speaking her home language.
Fala sério, professora.
The very language that rolls off her tongue like a rhythm Or a sweet song
Her language is ugly.
Her language makes her dumb.
Her language ma —

Wait, no.
Back up. Rewind.
This is a story. That's not right.
Let's start over.
In this story, everything is different In this story, societies stop oppressing communities of color
Those who come from nothing and everything Who are trying to get an education.

In this story, I don't wake up everyday with the weight on my shoulders
Of the worry
Of my friends getting shot.
In this story, nobody gets left behind.
Nobody gets killed by a gun.
In this story, there are no bombs.
There are no walls.
In this story, my country stops killing black and brown people.
In their own backyard and abroad.
In this story, none of my classmates get called criminals.

No bullet holes in the protagonist
No blood coming off the hero
In this story, those in power start caring!
And in this story, there are no saviors Because communities empower themselves Through their own stories Told in their own language In this story, nobody is treated differently, For having caramel or ebony skin Because yours is as pale as the headlights on your police car
And in this story, no one is hated for living outside your boxes
No one is shot for having a dream
And nobody is arrested for challenging
The demoralizing ways
Of white America

In this story, cultures don't become costumes In this story we are treated as fully human.
And in this story, our language is rich.

It makes us beautiful.
And it is respected.
Empowering.
Ancestral.

Because this is really just a story
For the little girl Who could feel her dreams so near

So real.
Possible.
Alive.
So close.

Right ... there.

In this story, a little girl loves herself.
Her body, her skin
Her mind, her hair
She loves her neighborhood.
And her people.
Her land and her language.
And most of all, her future.

Rise Above

by Kailah Gaines-Harris, 12 years old

In Memory of Maya Angelou

They may try to put you down Because you're not like them But you don't need to be like them
No matter how hard they're trying to change you
You rise above.

It doesn't matter if you don't look like them Or if you don't like the same things as them Because you were born your own way
And they were born their own way.

They're going to try to make you upset
And make you turn against your own thoughts
But you need to support yourself Don't let them stomp all over you Instead what you do is You rise above.

Keep doing what you do best Don't stop and fall Work very hard
And be the sun rising above them all.

When you start losing confidence in yourself Rise.
When you feel like you won't make it

Rise.
When things get hard Rise.

Rise against all those voices in your head
And those people Who made you feel like you were behind And they were ahead.
Rise above
Rise above
Rise above.

Troubled Treadmill

by Johanna VanLandegent, 15 years old

Last year you said you were done That you were too busy to run So what's happened now?
You came back somehow Since when has running been fun?

Don't get me wrong, it's been grand To finally be in demand But your poor treadmill's tired Would you check my wires?
All this use is just too much to stand

You've been talking about a disease That quarantine helps to appease But you're losing your mind Stuck quarantined
I guess running helps your unease

I think I at last understand I'm happy to lend you a hand As scary as this seems,
When we work as a team There's nothing that we can't withstand

In My Garden

by Ingrid Aardema, 6 years old

I'd plant roses in my garden.

Roses can be different shades,

Such as pink or red.

There's always something special because there is love in their stems.

That goes all the way to its middle and then to all of the petals.

All of the petals shine love into your mouth and then the love goes into your heart.

The heart is so special and shares its love with everyone.

You will always be my friend.

Love, Ingrid

Eraser Poem

by Olivia Brooks, 5th grade

Erase my mistakes Fix my problems
But I'm on the bottom
The tiniest of all everyone else is tall Bigger than me Happy with glee Still me at the bottom
With lots of problems
But then the shortest of girl picks me up And erases it all

Headphones Haiku

Written by Jack Stefanick, 4th grade

Cover up my ears Soft cushioning for my head Lets me hear my class

Enchanted Dragon

by Taegan Rademacher, 4th grade

The enchanted dragon spread her enormous, spiked wings.
Purple, blue, red, and black flashed through the swirling snow — falling silently to the ground

Humans have never fully gazed upon or known her beauty aside from the spectacular color in the sky She appears, then disappears in the blink of an eye It is only in the quiet of the white snow that a human is lucky enough to see her magnificent colors show Legends say if you get a glimpse of her you will be lucky forever

Horchata

by Jose Luis and Amaya Olivo, 7 and 9 years old Water first, put it inside the cup then this — the powder you need a spoon mix the water and the powder together then add the sugar and mix it up and we're done Boom — horchata try it now 1-2-3

Mmm! It's good

Random Stuff

by Salvador Blanco, 8 years old

Can you see into my head?

I can see the future through your forehead.

Dow now now now

da na nowww

when you fart and what's going on in your head ha I farted

or

I hope no one heard

or

ya someone better smell it then they'll be the one who dealt it

Cookbook

by Amaya Olivo, 9 years old the first ingredient is a cup second ingredient is water third ingredient is powder fourth ingredient is sugar fifth ingredient is a spoon ingredient six is mixing it up

Transformer Instructions

by Adahy Garcia, 9 years old open the doors to put them back then take this arm out then flip it this way then turn the body put these arms down when it's closed open these legs then boom yup

Transformer Instructions Continued

by Adahy Garcia, 9 years old

I put both feet to the back connect both feet which connects the legs kind of then flip it up just put the arms up then put these back and then — hold up flip these double legs, the tires then put the arm with the big sword inside the window, there's a hole in it and then ... now it's a car

Stripes

by Zanaya Wilson, 10 years old

A Tiger drinks water

A Tiger eats all the meat

A Tiger is ferocious

StrongWind

by Zanaya Wilson, 10 years old

I am Strongwind
I blow hats off of people no one can catch me no net will not do it no jar will not do it I am the wind

An Ode to Pizza

by Darek J. Roberts, 6th grade

Pizza, oh, pizza

Your warm embrace keeps me alive and calm

I want to have it everyday and every night

You keep me happy and make me think about life

Pizza, oh, pizza you fill me with delight

Delivery, frozen oven baked

Fresh — just right!

List Poem

By Jeydon White, 4th grade

I live in a house not a hotel not an apartment a house 4 bathrooms 2 kitchens
2 refrigerators 3 showers
2 man caves 4 bedrooms 1 washer 1 dryer
2 cars 2 tvs 0 dogs 0 cats and 1 microwave 3 stories
1 porch 1 balcony 4 sinks 1 dishwasher 1 fireplace and 8 loved ones In 1 big house

Virtual Snow Day

by Adam Justa, 4th grade

Snow, snow, you're so cool when there's too much we can't go to school!
In virtual school, when it's snowing the snow doesn't bother us we keep the learning, going by video, ice fishing with our teacher in a shanty!
class must go on all day we just do it the virtual way.

Metaphor Me

by Moira Springsteen, 4th grade

Moira is an open book her life is a story she is the main character navigating an interesting plot can't wait to see what happens next

Bittersweet

by Caleb Meskin, 4th grade

Holiday break was super fun I got lots of winter activities done we went to Bittersweet's powdery slopes my favorite thing was riding the tow ropes some like to ski but I like snowboarding

I took a break to sip a cocoa drink Hot and thick as a chocolate lava lake I think It was finally time to get back out and ride I whooshed down the wintery mountainside my board flies gracefully on to the rails I'm admired by all the teenage males

At Bittersweet

The Poem About Nature

by Mackenzie Lepisto, 7 years old

Flowers blooming, birds chirping.

Nature is beautiful!

I hope that summer will come again so we can play outside

Because we are sick of inside.

Because it is winter and I'm sad because we are inside.

Yay! Yay! Yay!

Finally it is summer, yay!

We get to play outside

It is fun when it is summer!

Because it is the best thing in the world.

So let's play outside!

Yay! Yay! Yay!

Let's go and play.

Ice Skating Poem

by Olivia Brooks, 4th grade

Tie me quick.
Hurry up!
There's no time to be stuck up

Just let me get onto the ice
You don't want to see me get into a fight Sign in, request a song, it's time to get your boogie on Scratch ... Scratch

don't crash Spin around, touch the ground Be careful with your kick you could knock someone down

Get off the rink get a drink
Dry your skates and finish up
That was a successful day without being stuck up.

An Ode to Snow

by Kendall Herrmann, 4th grade

Oh snow, Oh snow, you have only made it to my toes Oh shmicums, Oh shmanckles, now you're up to my ankles!

Oh shoot, Oh shoot, now you're up to the top of my boots:(

Oh my, Oh me, now you are up to my knees!

Why, Why, now you're up to my thighs

Oh bumper, Oh shmutton, now you are up to my belly button!

Oh no, Oh heck, now you're up to my neck!

Oh, now I can't smell a rose, 'cause you're up to my nose!

Don't you dare, Oh great, now you're up to my hair:(

Kevin's Winter Day

by Harper Petke, 4th grade

Kevin kindly, curiously kicked snow coated leaves, and grass kissed by winter's ice Kevin is my brand new dog and he sure is nice

He leaped so high that his paws nearly touched the shivering clouds in the sky

Slish, slosh, sloosh — Kevin pounces through the mounds of melting snow he's like a bunny bounding, leaping wherever we go

I give him my scarf because he looks wet and cold he shakes it off, shreds it — never doing what he's told it's almost time to head back inside leave the cold, blowing winter wind we step inside for a puppy bone and a marshmallowy, hot chocolate blend

Spring

by Jacob Milliken, 4th grade

When winter is gone and the chills go away the ice starts to thaw and the snowmen give way then flowers start blooming, scary winter storms stop looming after the winter, lumberjacks start chopping timber down the mature trees go this gives space for new, young ones to grow

When winter is done the best feature of spring Is new baby birds bringing Earth a new song to sing

Lake Michigan

By Stella Scavarda, 4th grade

Lake Michigan, Lake Michigan so much fun
The impressive big lake's so big and so wide On the sand we run and run
I like to sit by the tide

Wind flipping my hair while I ride on my speedboat Swim, splash, dive, and more Looking at mountain slopes, and my dad when he floats
The pretty crystal lake, oh galore

Sand in my toes, sand in my hair Hiking in the preserved wilderness Watch out for that bear!
My mom, as always, giving out kindness

Seeing many species of dogs Watching the naturalist crew Oh, you'll never see fog Lake Michigan, I love you!

Noodle, My Snake

by Andrew Boertman, 4th grade

Beautiful markings

Cold blooded but warm hearted

Family member

The Woods

by L.E. Mansberger, 4th grade

Dark, quiet, isolated. A blanket of peace. Pests and beauties alike, all united in a place we call the woods.

Sand

by Amairany Arevalo, 10 years old

Sand — the sand tickles my feet as I'm walking on the beach

sand feels relaxing when you play with it sand is the thing we need when we are stressed

I'm Hopeful

by Amairany Arevalo, 10 years old

I'm hopeful everyone will be ok

I'm hopeful COVID19 will go away

I'm hopeful I will get to see my friends again

I'm hopeful I will get to step inside of RAWK again

Untitled

by Carter Tuthill, 10 years old

I built a stone giant made of Legos with a shark stuck on his left hand and a headless crocodile on his right.
Now, I know what you're thinking: that's not very poetic at all!
But that's what makes this poem unique.

Untitled

by Carter Tuthill, 10 years old

The sky with only one thing above the blackness of space with the pin-pricks of light we call stars

Untitled

by Carter Tuthill, 10 years old

There's a pig on my couch
There's a pig on my couch
It poked me in the back And I said ouch

I drove up to Maine
I drove up to Maine
My car cooks pancakes
'cause I'm not sane

Hey look there's a cat
Hey look there's a cat
Hey look there's another one And I said scat

Question Poem

by Elizabeth Sparks, 9 years old

How do we die?

Are we actually alive?

Do we talk and for what reason?

Do we hear everything?

Why are people treated differently, because they're different?

Haiku

by Elizabeth Sparks, 9 years old

Why do we live here?
The grass is green this morning,
The birds are singing.

Untitled

by Maddex DeGraw, 10 years old

I look up, up, up In the sky I see a kite
I will in the light
It must be fun I know
'cause it blows

Untitled

by Margie Glynn, 10 years old

Desks, chairs, hallways, stairs, Pencils, books, lockers with hooks,
I miss all those things, Especially the homework and books,
I want to go back.

I want to go out and play, Outside on a sunny day,
When the clouds are high, in the sky,
And I will never walk away.

It is perfect here.
The Earth is full of wonders.
It's so exciting.

Strengths

by Stella Tillman, 9 years old

A strength that I wish to have is being strong like my dad, or being brave enough to ride on a roller coaster like my mom, or not being scared of heights like my little sister.

My Community

by Stella Tillman, 9 years old

I want my community to be able to go places again, but people need to be wearing a mask.
Wear a mask when you go to any place like a store or a friend's house.

I'm Black

by Tony VanStrein, 10 years old

I'm strong, I'm smart, I'm brave, I'm fast, I'm Black!

(2 Haikus)

by Tony VanStrein, 10 years old

1. The earth will explode but we will be on the moon.
2. Will the clouds still float in the future or not?

Untitled

by Zanaya Wilson, 10 years old

I miss all my friends

I so want to go to school

I hate coronavirus

Art is EVERYTHING

by Audrina Wellington, 12 years old

art is everything

art is color art is shape art is texture art is pattern art is Life art is emotional art is bossy art is nice art is me

Sunshine

by Audrina Wellington, 12 years old

On a bright and sunny day it will be good and full of happiness, it will feel like a dream.

If it is a rainy day it will be dramatic and only bad things will happen.

If you really are scared then it will be a nightmare right before night falls!

You will learn that snow is great because you can get a snow day out of it.

So basically you always want it to be sunshine or snowing because it is a miracle those days.

Also when it is sunshine you can play in the water and tan — that is really a miracle!

Ode to Isolation

by Caroline Guo, 12 years old

I look out of my window
And I see nothing, Just empty space.

It's a world of isolation And somehow,
I've been caught up in the mist

A storm is stirring
The storm of crisis,
And a storm inside,
The storm of frustrating cries.

Sometimes I feel tempted To try and forget About what's going on outside And let it all fly away

But then I remember That we are still Living in the mist of isolation Where the space threatens To swallow us up Isolation is distance
But distance does not have to be isolation And yet here we are Where another step away

Makes all difference Trivializing once important matters

Isolation can control
It will manipulate And manifest itself
In a myriad of ways

But one thing that's common
A storm is stirring
The storm of crisis,
And a storm inside,
The storm of frustrating cries.

Summer Haikus

by Chloe Jones, 10 years old

I make sandcastles
The waves crash into the bay
My sandcastles fall
The waves have gotten my castles Those pesky waves won

I go up and down
The waves carry me around I get pushed to shore

We run around the backyard
The sprinkler is chasing us We splash each other around The grass gets lots of water too
It's a big win-win

I lie down quietly
The sand is hot on my back The waves are really gaining They're not getting me this time I move far away
They keep on coming, oh no!
The water stops, good

A Summer Poem

by Chloe Jones, 10 years old

I wake up with a smile
Then I go downstairs onto the cold tile
To a window where I see
The sun beaming at me
I look at the forecast for the day It's sunny so it's a great day to play
We blow up the inflatable pool
To keep us very cool
We make some lemonade for us to drink
Then I wear my bathing suit that is pink We go outside and jump into the pool That keeps us cool
We listen to music and have tons of fun
That will never be done

To: The People of 2020

by Eloise Dunfee, 13 years old

We've solved the mess you were in And got a new leader We're starting all over and Trying to improve COVID is in a history book We're onto something new A solution.
A solution to,
The things in our world
That are troublesome news.
Your past experiences are Ones that can prove,
That you are now a little less SELFISH,
For helping those who came down with the blues.
Now, finally, 2020, the least we can do Is to raise a new generation who,
Are a little stronger, a little smarter, and a lot more selfless than you.

Signed, Future generations

Ode to Simple Joys

by Masha Canfield, 12 years old

The simplest joys of life we overlook, Wearing masks for parties, Squirting handfuls of sanitizer for fun, Throwing sleepovers with classmates, Hugging and playing with our friends, Everything from going out to eat,
From just hanging out.
But things have changed,
We can longer waste toilet paper,
No longer go to school the same way.
We have to make sacrifices.
We have to change too.
In the end,
We will realize what is most important.
The simple things
That make us happy.

Six Feet

by Tessa Hawthorne, 11 years old

Six Feet,
You keep me away
You keep me alive
It's hard to appreciate But you're needed nonetheless It's hard To stay away from friends and family, But without you
I shudder at the thought

Future

by Tessa Hawthorne, 11 years old

What is my future?
Do I have one?
How is future defined?
Is tomorrow my future?
Or is my future farther away?
Are you in my future?
Or do you fade out of it?
Who can change the future?
Can we change the future?
What will I do?
Write movies or novels?
Act or sing?
Do my dreams become my future?
Or do they remain dreams?
Can you tell the future?
Or can we only pretend to know it?
Do I have a future?
What is my future?

A Poem About Today

by Anonymous, 13 years old

Children are to be seen and not heard
We have nothing to add Too young to talk about politics But when did people's rights become a political agenda
When did universal truths become controversial Living, loving, and even using the bathroom Are now a cause for debate Why am I too young to speak out when I am already sexualized Already hold my keys as I walk home Why do I have to explain to my friend why I quickly put on a shirt over my bathing suit when I heard a man's voice as we were exploring at the beach I need to speak out Because I have already been called a lesbian And worse for sharing headphones or holding my friend's hand
If my body is viewed as grown why is my mind not Because now I am seen and not heard What do I have to do to be heard and not seen

Death

by Yamilet Brito-Arevalo, 12 years old

Is around the corner like a stop sign. It is there but you don't always feel it.

It makes its move like a hungry tiger and takes you with it, one by one it goes, and one by one it takes, and with the more high fevers and coughs that you take, the closer it gets.

Untitled

by Jackson Atkins, 14 years old

Going through life Gotta keep a strife People always yelling but never want to fight Gotta keep it nice Smooth as the night
We need to shake hands instead of pulling out the knife Stand up don't sit down Walk away don't mess around Keep the peace don't let us down Come on now let's hear it loud Unity, I can see it now Peace, love, ya boy is out

Untitled

by Jackson Atkins, 14 years old

As I look out in this world I see we need a change. It may come fast or slow but us people need a break.

Money Money Money that's what you have to have. But if jobs paid more, then we could pick up on the slack.

Poverty Poverty Poverty slips in like it's welcome. People try to make it through but in the end most never do.

Politics Politics Politics that's all some talk about. Sometimes things get scary but they will try some bills out. A bill here and a bill there, but do they truly care?

Race Race Race look around there's a different face. Where skins determine most, life can get pretty gross.

Got shot, got fired, they redline but we starting fires. But keep head up, don't hang it down. They say the future will be better but they been saying that like forever.

Will Black Lives Matter?

by Layla Roberts, 16 years old

Black Lives Matter

Have you heard of that saying?

I hope so, what do you think about it?

Do you think it's unfair?

Have you seen the news?

Innocent Black people dying, but what can be done?

Do we just watch and stare?

Do we mourn in peace?

Or do we mourn with protest?

I want to know ... Do Black Lives Matter to you?

And what can YOU do to help?

Untitled

by Sagan Barber, 16 years old

Oh, how great is the distance between us all between our hearts, our minds, but most importantly ourselves, our bodies.
The world is amiss and we are distanced in a time that our hearts crave closeness.
Most respect the distance, it is there for a reason, but some find that distance requires caring for others, and that caring for others inhibits their freedom.
Because empathy isn't an American right, "freedom is."
These people say they'd do anything for our country, go to war, shoot with killing intent, but maintaining a mere distance is too much, is inhibiting them.
It makes you wonder, where do their priorities truly lie...
As murder is easier than empathy.

Untitled

by Sagan Barber, 16 years old

Ever since I was a kid, I've loved cramped spaces and lots and lots of things.

I only feel semi-safe when surrounded by stuff, A wall, or two? A blanket, or four? Two pillows, or eight?

I am comforted by the multitudes and the magnitudes.

Piles of papers are safer than one,
Anything in excess is a shield from the unknown.
Small spaces filled to the brim, Walls closing in are better off than crumbling around you.

When everything is chaotic and lawless,
And screaming and shocking and unknown,
A small box is safer than a vast plain,
Any structure better than none.

For the Future I Want ...

by Hanis Sommerville, RAWK Intern & Mentor, 2nd year college student

For the future I want to be alive.
Want to be able to move about,
I want to be able to thrive.
I want to see friends,
Want to meet new friends,
I want to be friends with my friends' new friends.
I want to be back at college, Want to feel the struggle,
I want to be back in the K bubble.

Hesitate

by Vivian Enriquez, RAWK Intern & Mentor, 4th year college student

When I am afraid
I remember, that birds too hesitate to fly

When We Free Ourselves

by Vivian Enriquez, RAWK Intern & Mentor, 4th year college student

When we free political prisoners Free those in detention Free everyone from prisons

We will have to start to free our minds of punishment

When we free our minds of incarceration as a means of solving social issues we will free the land from corporations

When we free the land we free ourselves When we free our minds of nations annexations colonization

we free Palestine

When we free Palestine we free political prisoners free those detention free everyone from prisons

We will have to start to free our minds of punishment.

